Border Patrol chief defends use of tear gas on migrants at Mexican border

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 2018, 1:16 PM PT

U.S. Customs and Border Protection Commissioner Kevin McAleenan praised agents' response, including the use of tear gas, during clashes on Sunday at the San Ysidro border crossing, saying their actions avoided serious injuries on both sides and "effectively managed a potentially dangerous situation."

THE LEAD STORY - CHAOS AT THE BORDER - Images and videos posted on social media Sunday showed hundreds of migrants from a Central American caravan pushing past Mexican riot police and rushing the border at the port of entry in San Ysidro, Calif., in a major test for both U.S. border authorities and Mexican officials ... U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) said it temporarily suspended northbound and southbound crossings for both pedestrians and vehicles at the San Ysidro port of entry for approximately five-and-a-half hours. U.S. border agents shot several rounds of tear gas after some migrants attempted to penetrate various points along the border and threw what appeared to be rocks at U.S. authorities. Mexico's Milenio TV showed images of migrants climbing over fences and peeling back metal sheeting to enter. Tear gas fumes were carried by the wind toward people who were hundreds of feet away, including some children.

Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen said in a statement that DHS "will not tolerate this type of lawlessness and will not hesitate to shut down ports of entry for security and public safety reasons." The Mexican Interior Ministry said Sunday afternoon it would immediately deport the migrants who tried to "violently" breach the border. The dramatic escalation at the border came as Mexico's incoming government denied reports Saturday that it had struck a deal with the White House to keep asylum-seekers in the country while their claims move through U.S. immigration courts. President Trump, for his part, again threatened to close the entire southern border if no deal could be reached between the two countries. - Reported by Gregg Re (@gregg_re on Twitter)

LIBERAL HYSTERIA OVER BORDER VIOLENCE: Sen. Brian Schatz, D-Hawaii, tweeted Sunday that the use of tear gas against Central American migrants who attempted to enter the U.S. illegally may have been a violation of international agreements governing the use of chemical weapons -- before he backtracked ...

In response to reports of U.S. agents using tear gas on migrants, Schatz initially tweeted: "Tear gas across the border against unarmed families is a new low." Approximately 45 minutes later, Schatz tweeted: "Who gave the order? Did it implement or contravene policy?" He then tweeted "WHO GAVE THE ORDER?" in all caps. Schatz then asked: "Why tear gas? Is this consistent with the Conventions on Chemical Weapons?" However, the tweet was posted for just a few minutes before it was deleted and replaced by another message. In an exchange with opinion writer Stephen Miller, Schatz admitted that "I went ahead and deleted the one about chemical weapons because I just don't know enough about what happened." He then asked Miller: "Does this not strike you as excessive?" - Reported by Samuel Chamberlain (@SChamberlainFOX on Twitter)

SEEKING A 'TRUMP BUMP': President Trump is scheduled to return to the campaign trail on Monday to give a boost to incumbent Republican U.S. Sen. Cindy Hyde-Smith in the final hours of her battle with Democrat Mike Espy over Mississippi's Senate seat ... The closely watched runoff election this Tuesday between Hyde-Smith and Espy is the last U.S. Senate race to be decided in 2018 and will determine whether Republicans add to their slim majority. Espy, a former U.S. secretary of agriculture, is seeking to become Mississippi's first black senator since Reconstruction. Race has become the dominant issue in the final weeks of the campaign as Hyde-Smith has had to defend herself against several stumbles: A photograph of her wearing a replica Confederate soldier's hat, as well as a video of her praising a supporter by saying she would sit in the front row of a public hanging with him. Trump has supported Hyde-Smith throughout the controversies. They are set to appear together Monday in Tupelo, best known as the birthplace of Elvis Presley, and are then scheduled to fly to the Gulf Coast for a rally in Biloxi. - Reported by Bradford Betz (@bradford_betz on Twitter)

STILL SEEKING JUSTICE, 10 YEARS LATER: The U.S. on Sunday offered up to $5 million for information about the attackers who unleashed terror in India's largest city 10 years ago in a horrifying siege that killed 166 people, including six Americans ... Secretary of State Mike Pompeo announced the reward in a statement, calling for justice for the families of the victims in Mumbai. "It is an affront to the families of the victims that, after ten years, those who planned the Mumbai attack have still not been convicted for their involvement," Pompeo said. "We call upon all countries, particularly Pakistan, to uphold their UN Security Council obligations to implement sanctions against the terrorists responsible for this atrocity, including Lashkar-e-Tayyiba and its affiliates." - Reported by Nicole Darrah (@nicoledarrah on Twitter)

NEW CYBER MONDAY SALES TAXES - AND TIPS: Shoppers heading online to purchase holiday gifts will find they're being charged sales tax at some websites where they weren't before. The reason: the Supreme Court ... A June ruling gave states the go-ahead to require more companies to collect sales tax on online purchases. Now, more than two dozen have moved to take advantage of the ruling, many ahead of the busy holiday shopping season. Whether shoppers get charged sales tax on their online purchases comes down to where they live and where they're shopping. Before the Supreme Court's recent decision, the rule was that businesses selling online had to collect sales tax only in states where they had stores, warehouses or another physical presence. That meant that major retailers such as Apple, Best Buy, Macy's and Target, which have brick-and-mortar stores nationwide, were generally collecting sales tax from online customers. But that wasn't the case for businesses with a big online presence but few physical locations.

Thank you for working with our school district to ensure safety and security of our students, staff and schools during the San Ysidro Border Caravan issue that is in progress. The San Ysidro School District has 7 schools and 1 preschool school and serves approx 4,800 preschool-8th grade students and about 650 staff members. The two schools very close to the San Ysidro port of entry are: Willow Elementary (approx 800 preschool-6th grade students) and Sunset Elementary (approx 800 preschool-6th grade students).

The California Highway Patrol arrested 58 people for alleged intoxicated driving in San Diego County during its annual Thanksgiving holiday enforcement period this year. C-H-P officers made the arrests between 6 Wednesday night and 6 Sunday morning in the agency's jurisdiction in the county ... which includes all freeways ... as well as roads in unincorporated areas. Last year ... 66 people were arrested for impaired driving in San Diego County over the Thanksgiving holiday. Statewide ... the agency made 855 arrests for impaired driving during the enforcement period ... down from 9-hundred-65 last year.

OF NOTE TODAY...

After more than six months in transit ... a probe managed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena is scheduled to land on Mars today ... beginning the first mission designed to study the center of the Red Planet. The InSight mission is the first ever dedicated to Mars' deep interior ... and it will be the first NASA mission since the Apollo moon landings to place a seismometer on the soil of another celestial body. The spacecraft was launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base in Santa Barbara County in May. It is not a rover but ... rather ... is designed to carry out its mission from a stationary position. The probe is expected to land and set up shop in an area known as the Elysium Planitia ... which J-P-L officials have dubbed ``the biggest parking lot on Mars." InSight is scheduled to touch down on Mars around noon California time.

Subject: San Ysidro School District - Law Enforcement, DHS & BP Support for Border Caravan Issue

Hello Special Agent Cynthia & Officer Poorsaleh,

Thank you for working with our school district to ensure safety and security of our students, staff and schools during the San Ysidro Border Caravan issue that is in progress. The San Ysidro School District has 7 schools and 1 preschool school and serves approx 4,800 preschool-8th grade students and about 650 staff members. The two schools very close to the San Ysidro port of entry are: Willow Elementary (approx 800 preschool-6th grade students) and Sunset Elementary (approx 800 preschool-6th grade students).

The two types of incidents our district would need law enforcement, DHS and BP security and guidance regarding are: tear gas and riot. Please advise if there are any other types of emergency scenarios we should be considering and planning for. Additionally, please provide a few dates and times this week that a representative from each of your teams (SDPD, DHS, & BP) can meet with our district cabinet members and principals at Willow and Sunset to visit the campuses and establish an emergency response plan, if needed, that includes SDPD, DHS and BP support.
